True Stories of Old Sag Harbor

About the Author

Jim Marquardt has been a regular columnist for the award-winning Sag Harbor Express newspaper for the last ten years. He has written about local history, nature, immigration, personality profiles, travel, humor, and sailing.

For twenty-five years he was president of Marquardt & Roche Inc., Advertising/Public Relations in Stamford, Connecticut.

Jim also worked for New York City communications firms and corporations as an advertising/promotion copywriter, publicity writer, and magazine editor.

For several years he reviewed fiction for Dan's Papers, a well-known weekly periodical published on the East End of Long Island.

Jim graduated from St. Peter's University in New Jersey with a Bachelor of Arts in English Literature. Years later, he returned to teach a compulsory freshman writing course at this Jesuit institution.

He has written nonfiction articles for magazines and newspapers. His fiction has appeared in the North Atlantic Review and the East Hampton Star.
